Xinomavro PDO

Its versatility makes it ideal for a wide range of wine types: red, white, rose. The name Xinomavro is a conjunction and derives from the Greek words for "acid" and "black" which refer to the grape's inherent high acidity and dark colour. The above characteristics combined with the method of vinification and ageing, can produce exceptional wines with a sophisticated personality.

The VAENI Naoussa Co-op is one of the most highly progressive wine-producing units in Greece. It is a giant producer representing 50% of the local wine production, which comes from an area renowned for its exquisite red wines. The co-operative counts 200 members -experienced vine growers- who are driven by their profound love for quality wines. That vital human factor, combined with the use of advanced technology, can guarantee the quality of the wine, which is mainly sourced from Xinomavro, an indigenous variety dominating northern Greece.

Naoussa has always been associated with the vine and has been renowned for its exquisite wines. The soils, the water and the climate have always been an ideal combination for the cultivation of the greatest grape varieties. This vine-growing tradition traces back to the old ages. Its excellent wine travels all over the civilized world. Well-structured and precious, this wine justifies its reputation. In October 1987 in Rome, Naoussa was pronounced an International Town of Vine and Wine.
